

Replace Abstract:

ABSTRACT

B/ The present invention provides an air flow measuring device comprising a housing with a sub-passage having an inlet and an outlet for air flow formed in the housing, the sub-passage further having a predefined curvature with a maximum downstream point and a flow measuring element located in the sub-passage at a position at least further downstream from the point.
